There was a little girl and there was a fairy that came to grant her one wish. She wished for a big cake.
She ate ten bites of the cake then she got a stomach ache.
When she went to the doctor, the doctor said the cake is not healthy next time you should wish for an orange.
When she got home she was resting in her bed. She promised not to wish for junk food again.
She felt all better and lived happily ever after with her orange.